

Thank you to Our Mom's and Dad's

The man and woman responsible for bringing us into the world, feeding us, taking us to school and ball practice, getting our cavities filled, nursing us when we were sick, and doing the million other things that go with being parents deserve honor. Not one of us will ever know the many sacrifices our parents made to give us a head start on a successful career, family, and life. They were the one pair of people in the world that always believed in us, loved us even when we failed at something, and never kicked us when we were down.

Mark Twain mused, "When I was fourteen I thought my father was the dumbest man in the world, but by the time I reached twenty-one it was surprising how much he had learned in seven short years."² Even if we end up being more highly educated than our parents, the base of our knowledge came from them. There are some things that cannot be learned in a book—they come only by experience. Parents pass the practical wisdom of a lifetime down one sentence at a time. Solomon said that parental commandments and reproofs are light and the way of life (Proverbs 6:23).

A military man is distinguished by his decorations; a child is decorated by his/her obedience (Proverbs 1:8-9). To God, this type of ornamentation is worth more than a Distinguished Service Cross or a Congressional Medal of Honor. House to House/Heart to Heart Condensed for space. Let us never forget what our parents did for us. Happy Mother's Day to all of our mothers.

Ernie
